

SPEECH LANGUAGE PATHOLOGY AND AUDIOLOGY MINOR

The Minor in Speech Language Pathology and Audiology is a 6 course program that provides prerequisite coursework for those interested in pursuing graduate work in the field of Communication Sciences and Disorders. The minor is also a complement to related fields of study that may include linguistics, psychology, inclusive and early childhood education, family studies, child advocacy, biology, social work, gerontology, music therapy, and other health related fields. The coursework provides an introduction to normal communication development (speech, language, and hearing), as well as diagnosis and treatment of developmental or acquired disorders throughout the lifespan, current research, related professionals, and work settings.
